Rock Solid Technologies (RST) builds software solutions for the Puerto Rico market. Our people make us successful. We believe that developing local talent and keeping them in Puerto Rico is the right thing to do. This scholarship intends to help in the development of local talent and make that talent stay in Puerto Rico to help our economy and our growth.

Candidates are required to be full-time students on their junior year with a GPA of 3.00 or better. Students in the Computer Engineering, Computer Information Systems or Computer Sciences, Accounting major may apply. RST will evaluate all applications and select finalists for interview by February 13-17, 2012. Winners will be announced by March 2, 2012.

All applications must include name, local address, permanent address, e-mail address, phone number, GPA and major. Visit our website for more details. Applications must be postmarked not later than January 27, 2012.

Candidates must answer the following question:
What is the biggest challenge facing Puerto Rico right now and what are your recommendations to deal with it?

Scholarships awards include $1,500 plus a salaried summer job of at least 10 weeks. RST reserves the right not to offer the summer job if no positions are available.
